Institute of Environmental Management & Assessment

got a minute?

Find out why becoming a member could be time well spent

The Institute of Environmental Management and Assessment (IEMA) is the certified home to over 15,000 environmental professionals from across the globe.

As an organisation, we're here to support our members with the knowledge, skills and tools to enable them to be totally effective in delivering excellent environmental performance within their businesses.

By becoming a member, you will demonstrate your commitment to putting the environment at the heart of change and the shift towards a sustainable economy.

From starting out as a student, our membership levels allow you to simply 'belong' to IEMA as an Affiliate or continue to upgrade your membership through ongoing professional development to Full membership – the choice is yours, but the recognition that top level membership brings could certainly benefit you as you progress in your career.

Time spent developing your membership now, could help you achieve your career goals in the future

Time for the benefits...

Our members' strength lies in the power of collaboration and the pursuit of common goals. Every member contributes to make a difference and IEMA is on hand to support that.

Networking:

Receive invitations to regional and national events where you are able to network and exchange ideas with other environmental and sustainability practitioners. You'll always be up to date with the latest thinking and be able to share this with like minded people facing similar challenges.

Knowledge and Guidance:

We want to deliver you the most pertinent, up to date information and do so via 24/7 news on our website, regular webinars, workshops and online briefings. As a member you'll have access to a series of invaluable online resources as well as receiving a weekly update on what's happening. The IEMA's skills map is a unique tool to help you plan your career and organise appropriate training and will also help you to fill any gaps when it comes to updating your CV.

so which membership is right for you?

Joining IEMA whilst still at university not only keeps you up to date with current issues, but will allow you to differentiate yourself by adding 'IEMA Student Member' to your CV. You will be able to demonstrate your dedication to an environmental career and meet others within the profession at regional events throughout the UK. If you have recently graduated, you will automatically be upgraded to Graduate status.

graduate

As a graduate member you can begin to develop your career. That's why access to our webinars, conferences and policy documentation can help you to really stand out from the crowd. At graduate level, you will be kept up to date with the latest issues, developments and legislation relevant to the profession. You will be able to network with experienced colleagues from various backgrounds and can retain your graduate membership for two years before transferring to Affiliate level or upgrading to Associate.

IEMA recognises that for some people, the sense of belonging to a professional body and the ability to contribute and comment on its work, is all they require. Affiliate level is ideal if you are starting your career and wish to know more about environmental & sustainability, there is also the opportunity to participate in workshops, events and network with likeminded individuals. You will be kept up to date with issues affecting the profession and can remain an Affiliate for as long as you wish.

associate

If you are keen to be recognised for your knowledge within an environmental role, Associate membership is for you, as it is widely recognised as the minimum professional achievement level. By passing the Associate entry exam, you will have demonstrated a broad understanding of environmental issues and this will be confirmed by the independent professional body – IEMA.

As a Full member, you are typically a highly experienced individual who spends a majority of your time working towards environmental improvements for your organisation. Your focus is on maximising your impact and making a difference within your company whilst working towards a sustainable economy. By passing an assessment you will achieve the accolade of Full Member with Chartered Environmentalist status and be entitled to use the suffix MIEMA & CEnv in recognition.

fellowship

This is the pinnacle of professional recognition. You will be a dedicated individual who constantly strives towards a sustainable economy by using their own organisation as an achievable example. As Full membership demonstrates the application of knowledge through experience, Fellowship adds to this the recognition of substantial achievement. Fellowship requires candidates to achieve Full membership before applying to join this select group of environmental professionals.

corporate

IEMA also offers membership to organisations as well as individuals. By becoming a corporate member, your organisation wants to be at the cutting edge of defining the cultural change towards sustainability. It will be able to demonstrate to all that the environment is at the heart of its business practices and will benefit from an affiliation with IEMA that enhances its reputation as an environmental champion. Going forward, your organisation will be able to influence best practice and benefit from IEMA's expert advice.

Time for partners...
